

FREE Domestic Violence and Abuse Training

Tyneside Women's Health is pleased to introduce a range of new training on Domestic Violence and Abuse issues. Our aim is to raise awareness of this issue across Newcastle and Gateshead to ensure that victims are supported appropriately.

NEW! Domestic Violence Awareness Training

- Explore the nature and prevalence of DVA
- Examine the impact on adult victims and children
- Investigate barriers to disclosure, seeking support and leaving abusive relationships
 - Highlight the myths and reality surrounding DVA
- Identify local and national initiatives and support services

We can also offer specific in-depth training on the following topics:

- The MARAC process and CAADA-DASH risk assessment
- Effects of DVA on children and young people
- DVA in LGBT relationships
- Responding effectively to DVA
- Forced marriage and honour-based violence
- DVA awareness for managers
- DVA and mental health

We have flexibility to offer bespoke training packages covering elements from all of the above in order to meet the needs of your organisation/personnel. However it is advisable that the basic awareness course is completed first if your staff do not have prior experience in this area.

We can also offer online support and advice with policy writing.

Sessions can be delivered as full day, half-day workshops, or an introductory one-hour slot ideal for lunch breaks and team meetings. Training can be tailored to meet the needs of your individual organisation – please email to discuss your requirements.

Training can be delivered outside of normal office hours if required.

To book training or discuss the sessions on offer, contact Sophie Mitchell at Tyneside Women's Health. All training is offered free of charge.
